GSK SCIENCE IN THE SUMMER™ PROGRAM

The Be an Engineer program is being offered virtually, and is designed for ages 7-13, but families are invited to explore together. Through videos and at-home experiments, children can take on roles of different engineers, then join virtual research team meetings with Franklin Institute scientists & educators to share results.

There will be an online lottery from May 3 - 21, to receive a free kit of science materials for the Environmental and Electrical Engineer activities. Additional online content is available for exploration with Structural and Biomedical Engineer activities. If you are not selected in the lottery, all activity guides, material lists, and videos will be shared online, so you can gather your own materials to participate.

Visit https://www.fi.edu/scienceinthesummer for more information.

Thank you for complying with rules for safe library use. We continue to monitor the status of COVID-19. We are working to bring you the highest level of service possible in this ever-changing environment.
